

Are you interested in teaching internationally?
Would you like to gain insight into other education systems?

Preparing to Teach Internationally

Professional development program for teachers and other education professionals

international education
faculty of education

As the world becomes increasingly globalized, there are a number of teaching opportunities available around the world.

This five-day professional development program is designed for educators and others who are interested in teaching internationally, or for those who would like to gain a greater understanding of elementary, secondary and adult education in a global context. Throughout the program, education will be explored through the lens of both international development and global economic competition. The program will help participants gain insight into education, as well as to gain a better understanding of themselves as educators so that they can make informed decisions and explore both the challenges and joys of working in Education outside of Canada.

Explore the following themes:

- Systems and Schools
- Issues and Politics
- Skills and Strategies
- Planning and Preparation

Certificate of completion from the Faculty of Education will be provided to successful participants at the end of the program.

Fall Session: October 1, 15, 22, 29 and 30, 2011 (five-hour classes) on York campus, Toronto

For further information contact the International Education office, Faculty of Education, York University by phone at 416-736-2100 ext. 20052 or by email at international@edu.yorku.ca.

To register, visit <http://edu.yorku.ca/intl/preparing.html>

explore international education • professional development program

