

Department of English Language and Literature

MINOR IN CULTURE, RACE and RESISTANCE

The Minor is based on a diverse range of courses exploring forms of cultural resistance related to race, ethnicity, gender, nationalism, globalization, social justice and activism. Students study literature from transnational, translocal, and interdisciplinary perspectives, while investigating postcolonial, anti-colonial, black and Indigenous approaches and texts.

Prerequisite: Three (3) credit hours in ENGL at the 1000 level

Strongly recommended courses: ENGL 3302 Literary Theory I and/or ENGL 3303 Literary Theory II

The following courses count toward the fulfillment of the Minor credit requirements in the 2024-2025 academic year:

- ENGL 1284.1 Literature and Resistance
- ENGL 2320.1 Writing by Women
- ENGL 2461.1 Mikmaq Storytelling and Literature
- ENGL 3361.1 World Literature in English
- ENGL 3444.1 Shakespeare I: Comedies and Romances
- ENGL 3841.1/IRST Sp. Topic: Beckett and the Idea of Zionism
- ENGL 3827.1/IRST Sp. Topic: The Civilising Process, an Irish Introduction
- ENGL 3791.2 Literature of the Black Atlantic
- ENGL 3828.2 Sp. Topic: Queer Lives and Letters
- ENGL 4556.2 Hon. Sem.: Animal Life, AI and Cyborg Futures

For more information, contact:

Dr. Tatjana Takševa, Chairperson, Department of English Language and Literature
Tatjana.Takseva@SMU.ca